

*An estimated 6,000 to 7,000 babies are born in Britain each year with alcohol related brain damage known as Foetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD). This means that 1 in 100 children born, 1% of the population, may be affected by FASD.

ASCERT has been funded by the Public Health Agency to provide ½ day FASD awareness raising workshops. The workshop will include;

- An understanding on what Foetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder is
- How it effects the individuals attention, language, social and personal skills
- Advice on simple strategies to provide support to those affected

If you are interested in accessing this free training then please complete the application form below and return to ASCERT's training administrator Roisin McGarry at training@ascert.biz in order to secure a place.
